- Great engagement and dialogue.
- Opportunity for dialogue with other partners.
- Engagement – value of opinion.
- Ability to share and record ideas. Seeing all the comments others were making. Networking with other organizations.
- The opportunity to connect with others. The process was clear and straightforward.
- That it happened. Thank you for the invitation.
- The broad viewpoints and discourse. Also cookies.
- The opportunity for open dialogue with people I don't normally have the chance to speak with. The focus on community and connection.
- I appreciated that this feels like an invitation. This experience is unique to what I've had as a collaborative partner with CBE.

dialogue)))

- Group conversation, meeting new potential partners, learning from others – opportunity to share ideas.
- Opportunity to meet people from a wide range of organizations.
- Variety of stakeholders. Excellent!
- Great networking, good structure.
- Listening to CBE leaders speak – insightful – added clarity.

8) What did you like least about this session?

- It had to end and would have liked a summary.
- What to engage & continue to contribute.
- Seemed to be lacking diversity – specifically the immigrant community which was identified as being a large factor in upcoming planning.
- It was all very good. Thank you.
- Thought it was great. Right amount of time, etc.
- Really well done & moderated.
- Suggestion – Community partners can support with engagement of parents and students – especially those students who are not engaging in the CBE due to lack of support – Racism, lack of inclusion and belonging, etc. Looking forward to hearing the CBE's response to Danielle Smith announcement this week.
- More time, more diversity of attendees.
- Nothing.
- I felt the questions were too broad. Would have like something more inquiry based. I.e. What should every child have at school knowing/feeling/thinking?
