Langevin School unveils mural

For Immediate Release

CALGARY — Langevin School students have been working with an artist, Charlie Johnston, to create a mural at the school. On Sept. 12 the school will unveil their new mural to the world, during Calgary's second-annual Beakerhead Festival.

Langevin School offers a science program designed to meet the needs of students who have a keen interest in science and inquiry-based learning. This mural brings science to life through art.

Media are invited to join in the celebration assembly at 10 a.m. and other activities to follow. The assembly will be followed by tours and interactive activities, including a science-based scavenger hunt in the afternoon.
